Miami, FL., May 7, 2024 – The Antonia Collection, a luxury collection that forges a bond between Art Deco and Mid-Century modern styles in effortless fashion, has announced its industry collaboration with Fine Art Handcrafted Lighting, a premier artisan of handcrafted lighting since 1940. Built on the fusion between two legacy companies steeped in generation-driven expertise, this collaboration grants showrooms, designers and retailers access to a unique lighting collection notable for its exceptional finishes and customization capabilities.

The collection features the signature goatskin parchment components in an array of colors and custom options from JIMECO, a leading industry atelier that is known for its exceptional craftsmanship and from which the Antonia Collection emerged. Fine Art Handcrafted Lighting will round out the collection with its beautiful hand cut glass and handcrafted metal finishes, giving the pieces a unique air of elegance that can be seen in some of the most exquisite residences in the world.

“Ever current yet enduring, the Antonia Collection is known for its contemporary lines, paired with timeless luxury finishes,” said Antonia Caicedo, creator of the Antonia Collection and design director at JIMECO. “Partnering with Fine Art Handcrafted Lighting has been a tremendous experience, and we look forward to seeing what the future holds as we continue down this path of creativity and design together.”

The collaboration between the Antonia Collection and Fine Art Handcrafted Lighting was a natural development, considering the precision and perfection that both companies strive to achieve in their one-of-a-kind pieces. Additionally, both companies were built on the rock of legacy, so the marriage of the two was both a strategic and seamless endeavor that will only add to what has been established over the years.

We appreciate our partnership with Antonia and her commitment to excellence, as it mirrors our own,” said René Quintana, principal at Fine Art Handcrafted Lighting. “Our goal in the development of this collection is to build on our mutual success by creating lighting that is truly exceptional.”
