

Shophe Object's High Point Activation Returns October 26-29 With Another Installment of Curated Home Brands to Explore

The doors will open to brands both familiar and new along with a schedule of delightful events.

High Point, NC – Shoppe Object brings the magic back to North Carolina at High Point Market on Thursday, October 26th through Sunday, October 29th, in a celebration of innovation, creativity, and design. Once again taking place on the third floor of Historic Market Square, putting its original hardwood floors, exposed brick, wood columns, and light-filled industrial windows on display, the show's fall event is ready to impress with a showcase of extraordinary brands, each focused on home decor and furnishings.

“As we head into the third installment of Shoppe Object’s long-term residence at High Point’s Historic Market Square, I’m truly inspired by how things are taking root. We set out to bring a community of brands and artisans that were new to High Point Market and to introduce them to a new audience. We are excited to bring something refreshing to the market that long-time attendees have welcomed with great enthusiasm. Those that have already found us keep coming back for more, and they’re bringing their friends with them, too!”
